

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

This FAQ has been developed based on previous questions which the AHSCP has answered regarding Inch War Memorial Hospital.

This document will be updated throughout the engagement process so please get in touch if you have any further questions which we can answer here

To ask a question just email: integration@aberdeenshire.gov.uk

How many inpatient beds were being used before temporary closure in 2020?

There were 5 open inpatient beds.

Why were the number of inpatient beds reduced in 2019?

The decision to reduce the number of inpatient beds was taken due to long-standing challenges around recruitment and concerns around the ability to safely evacuate the building in case of fire.

Why did Inch War Memorial Hospital close in 2020?

An operational decision was taken by Aberdeenshire HSCP to temporarily close Inch War Memorial to inpatients in March 2020 with the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic. The rationale for the decision was to consolidate staff at larger sites: Inch Hospital had been experiencing staffing problems for some time prior and had already been forced to reduce inpatient beds to ensure a safe level of staffing.

What does it mean that the hospital was 'mothballed' in 2020?

Mothballed is another way of saying 'temporarily closed'.

Were other services being delivered from the hospital before temporary closure in 2020?

No

Why was the hospital not reopened after Covid-19?

The ongoing concerns around the suitability of the building for the provision of inpatient services and the continued re-deployment of staff meant that it was not operationally viable to reopen.

Who does the hospital building belong to?

NHS Grampian owns the building. Aberdeenshire HSCP has operational responsibility for running Health and Social Care services on a day-to-day basis.

Which parts of the hospital are not 'fit for purpose'? What evidence is there to confirm this?

The configuration of the building is not suitable for the delivery of modern inpatient services. In addition, the building requires a new boiler.

Why was a Strategic Needs Assessment required?

The Integration Joint Board asked that a strategic needs assessment for residents of Inch and the surrounding area be undertaken to develop options for future delivery of health and social care services. The Needs Assessment was published in February 2022.

What engagement was undertaken to inform the Strategic Needs Assessment?

Engagement was undertaken through both a survey and focus groups in the community. Detail of the engagement can be found in the June 2022 report to the Aberdeenshire Integration Joint Board.

What happened following the publication of the Strategic Needs Assessment?

A Stakeholder Group was established, and an options appraisal process was undertaken. The options can be viewed in the June 2022 report to Aberdeenshire Integration Joint Board.

Why weren't any options implemented? Why has there not been any progress since 2022?

Work did continue after the Integration Joint Board meeting in June 2022.

The Strategic Assessment was submitted to Scottish Government in July 2022. This was the initial formal stage in the Scottish Capital Investment Manual (SCIM) Business Case process, which was followed to secure funding for major NHS Capital Projects.

Unfortunately, the Scottish Government subsequently indicated that there was a lack of money nationally for capital investment. Due to commitments to other major capital projects, funding through NHS Grampian was also not possible.

Operational demands and limited staff capacity, alongside a lack of consensus in the local community, has hampered engagement on a wellbeing hub proposal whilst capital funding is unavailable. However, discussions had continued to take place between AHSCP colleagues and representatives from the Friends of Inch Hospital and Community, the Bennachie Community Council and Inch Medical Practice in 2023/24.

What has happened to the operational budgets previously held by Inch hospital?

Over the last three years the AHSCP has faced significant financial pressures and whilst the operational budget for Inch was initially kept intact it was used to offset overspends in other areas.

The budget for redeployed staff has now been transferred into the budgets for the areas where they now work and the remaining budget has been removed from our balance sheet.

Has an assessment been done for Insch to understand how many community hospital beds the population might require?

There is no recognised formula for the provision of Community Hospital beds.

Are the residents of Insch and surrounding area getting fair access to services compared to areas with Community Hospitals?

Insch residents can be admitted to any Community Hospitals – primarily at Inverurie and Huntly.

Can a local care home be used for palliative beds for the Insch community?

The AHSCP did explore the possibility of commissioning interim care beds at a local Care Home, however it was not viable at the time.

How will the engagement feedback collected now (in June / July 2026) be used?

The engagement feedback will be summarised and included in an engagement report. The feedback will also inform an Impact Assessment that forms part of the report to the Aberdeenshire Integration Joint Board. If there are any actions arising for the partnership to follow up on, this will also be highlighted in the IJB report.

Will the community be able to view the engagement report and when?

Yes, the engagement report will form part of the report to the Aberdeenshire Integration Joint Board in September 2026 (available publicly on the council website), and a link to the report will be added to the Insch Hospital page on the Engage Aberdeenshire website.

What happens next if it is agreed that the Health and Social Care Partnership no longer require the use of the hospital building?

The Health and Social Care Partnership would hand the building back to NHS Grampian, who own the building. It would then be NHS Grampian's decision on what happens to the building and the next steps.
