House Rules

When you participate in the online forums, please keep in mind our house rules. These are written as a guideline to ensure that the forums are a place where all members of the group can exchange views and opinions in a friendly environment.

When using the forums please:

- Treat others in the forums as you would expect them to treat you.
- Do not use offensive, defamatory or obscene language. If you have any doubts about whether a particular statement might be considered offensive by others, err on the side of caution and don't post it.
- Do not post persistent off-topic contributions or comments.
- Do not reveal personal details, such as private addresses, phone numbers, email addresses or other online contact details.
- Be respectful of others – comments should not be malicious or offensive in nature, and should not be disrespectful of someone else's views or comments. We will delete comments from the forums that breach our guidelines, and anyone persistently breaking the house rules will be asked to leave the forum.
